John 15:2

The Danger of Stagnation

A real problem we are facing on daily basis is to become stuck in a rut and become satisfied with the status quo. This is especially so with schools where things are going well so there is a temptation to leave things the way they are.

The problem with this approach is that nothing improves and, in the blink of an eye, you find that you are out of date and out of touch. The way to counter this is through continuous professional development which the staff at Lendy Park School are doing (50 hours per year) and continual re-examination of the way the school functions. This means that your feedback is both valued and considered. At Lendy Park, we want to be on the cutting edge, not wallowing in the annuals of history.

The Community Spirit

I can not express my gratitude enough to those who have stepped forward to help our school in the last two weeks: the donation of tights for the fillies hockey team; the donation of oranges for the sports events; to the donation of 12 cubic metres of soil for our cricket pitch and the many people who have gone out of their way to help us with repairs to our bus - transporting parts to Harare and back; putting our job at the front of the queue; providing interest free bridging finance and in so many other ways. Thank you.
